Tsunami of innovation

This graph shows many of the technologies that are likely to change our lives, as well as others that will be developed to a greater or lesser extent. It represents the increasing integration of emerging technologies — such as artificial intelligence, the Internet of Things (IoT), augmented reality and virtual reality — which are already converging to generate a huge wave of innovation and transformation. Thanks to them, we have the ability to improve in many areas. The challenge lies in achieving an ethical, sustainable, and just transition that reaches everyone equally and that puts both people and the planet at the very centre.